

SENATOR JIM BEALL

SB 284 Keep Youth Close to Home Act

Co-Authors: Senators Portantino and Wieckowski & Assemblymembers Chiu, Gipson, and McCarty

ISSUE

The annual cost to the state to confine youth at the Division of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) averages more than $300,000 per person, yet counties contribute only $24,000 annually per youth. Best practices show local rehabilitation is more effective; however, the current low fee incentivizes counties to send individuals to DJJ, where they are isolated from family and community-based support.

BACKGROUND

Justice involved youth are more effectively rehabilitated in small, close to home facilities, allowing for a smooth transition back into their communities. Nearly every county in California has its own secure, probation-run facility for youth, yet they operate at just 30 percent of capacity¹, and many have abundant treatment space for high-needs individuals. Much of this space was paid for by the state with $300 million in construction financing.²

In 1961, counties began paying a flat fee of $25 per month to house youth in a state facility. In 1996, California passed SB 681 (Hurt) which established a sliding scale fee designed to keep most youth close to home. The Legislature continued to maintain an annual fee for counties with the intent to incentivize local rehabilitation.

In 2012, SB 1021 established the $24,000 flat fee. With the costs of local juvenile halls, camps, and ranches generally exceeding $24,000 per year, and increasing annually, counties have financial incentive to send youth to the state facility.

Youth sent to DJJ experience trauma of separation from family, and are often exposed to violence. They do not receive adequate educational services, vocational programs, or mental health treatment. DJJ's most recent recidivism report shows that 74 percent of youth released in FY 2011-12 were rearrested within three years of release, 54 percent were reconvicted for a new offense, and 37 percent returned to a state institution (DJJ or prison).³

There are extreme discrepancies in counties' rates of sending individuals to DJJ. Taxpayers in counties that manage much or all of their high-needs youth locally still pay to support DJJ due to other counties that rely most heavily on it.

THIS BILL

In order to reduce county reliance on DJJ and increase local juvenile justice innovation, SB 284 creates an incentive to keep youth closer to home by:

- (1) Increasing the cost of county confinement to DJJ from $24,000 to $125,000 for youth who meet either of the descriptions below:
 - a. Committed for an offense that occurred when under 16 years of age, or
 - b. Committed for an offense that would carry a sentence of fewer than 7 years in criminal court had they been tried as an adult.
- (2) Maintain a fee of $24,000 per youth per year for cases most at risk of transfer to adult court:
 - a. Committed for an offense that occurred when they were 16 or 17 years old, and

¹ <http://app.bscc.ca.gov/joq/jds/queryselection.asp>

² http://www.bscc.ca.gov/m_construction.php, p. 81

³ https://www.cdcr.ca.gov/Juvenile_Justice/docs/2016-Division-of-Juvenile-Justice-Outcome-Evaluation-Report-2-21-2017.pdf, p. 2

- b. Committed for an offense that would carry a sentence of 7 or more years in criminal court had they been tried as an adult.

SUPPORT

Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice (Co-Sponsor)
Communities United for Restorative Youth Justice (Co-Sponsor)
Community Works (Co-Sponsor)
Motivating Individual Leadership for Public Advancement (Co-Sponsor)
Youth Justice Coalition (Co-Sponsor)

Alliance for Boys and Men of Color
American Civil Liberties Union
Anti-Recidivism Coalition
Asian Americans Advancing Justice – California
Bend the Arc: Jewish Action
California Alliance for Youth and Community Justice
California Attorneys for Criminal Justice
California Catholic Conference
California Public Defenders Association
California School-Based Health Alliance
Californians for Safety and Justice
Californians United for a Responsible Budget
Ceres Policy Research
Children Now
Children’s Defense Fund California
Courage Campaign
Disability Rights California
Drug Policy Alliance
East Bay Community Law Center
Ella Baker Center for Human Rights
Fair Chance Project
Fathers and Families of San Joaquin
Felony Murder Elimination Project
Freedom 4 Youth
Friends Committee on Legislation of California
Further the Work
Immigrant Legal Resource Center
Initiate Justice
John Burton Advocates for Youth
Just Detention International
League of Women Voters of California
Legal Services for Prisoners with Children
Los Angeles District Attorney Jackie Lacey
National Center for Lesbian Rights
National Center for Youth Law

National Juvenile Justice Network
Oakland Rising
Pacific Juvenile Defender Center
Project Rebound at Sacramento State University
Re:store Justice
Root and Rebound
RYSE Center
San Francisco Public Defenders Office
Silicon Valley De-Bug
Supervisor Sandra Lee Fewer, San Francisco City and County Board of Supervisors
Urban Peace Institute
Urban Peace Movement
W. Haywood Burns Institute
Youth United for Community Action
Young Women’s Freedom Center
Youth ALIVE!
Youth Law Center

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Tania Natalie Dikho
Office of Senator Jim Beall
(916) 651-4015
Tania.Dikho@sen.ca.gov